

Acknowledgements

ICAN is the product of a South-South collaboration between 13 PAL Network member organisations, local district level partner organisations in participating countries, the PAL Network Secretariat, numerous colleagues, supporters and friends of citizen-led assessments.

We are thankful to all PAL leaders for their guidance and participation in ICAN, and for sharing the individual messages that have been included in this report.

We are immensely thankful to Suman Bhattacharjea who guided the development of this report. We are also indebted to Wilima Wadhwa for providing sampling and statistical guidance for ICAN. Data analysis for this report was implemented by Steffi Elizabeth Thomas, Waqas Imran and Suraj Kumar. Several PAL leaders provided feedback on the earlier draft, their support in improving this volume is gratefully acknowledged. Hannah-May Wilson contributed to several sections of this report. Avital Datskovsky provided editing support. Sanjeev Sharma and Prakriti Saha designed the report.

The ICAN project was led by PAL Network's Assessment Working Group. We are immensely grateful to the ICAN Project Management Team members in the 13 countries for their tireless efforts, which enabled the seamless implementation of the ICAN project. They are: Gopal Dey, Aurin Huq, Falguni Reza and Sunjida Rahman (Bangladesh); Vikram Guria and Sudipto Kar (India); Francis Njuguna (Kenya); Bréhima Traore and Adama Danioko (Mali); Ana Karen Espinoza Morales and Ricardo Picie Hernández (Mexico); Lino Garcia Andre (Mozambique); Pramila Bisunke and Samjhana Balami (Nepal); Maribel Ochoa and Arline Calderón (Nicaragua); Bridget Azubuike and Gbenga Quadri (Nigeria); Sahar Saeed and Muhammad Fiaz (Pakistan); Soufianou Moussa and Kaba Diakhaté (Senegal); Richard Temu and Benjamini Masebo (Tanzania); and Ismail Sentamu, Faridah Nassereka and Judith Nyakaisiki (Uganda).

ICAN was implemented in one rural district in each of the 13 participating countries. In most cases, a local partner organisation supported the implementation of ICAN. We gratefully acknowledge the participation of: Rural Reconstruction Foundation (RRF) (Bangladesh); Jai Narayan Sarvodaya Vidyalaya (India); Mwala Youth Team Initiatives (Kenya); Samriddha Samaj (Nepal); Escuela Normal José Martí, Matagalpa (Nicaragua); Health and Sustainable Development Association of Nigeria (HESDAN) (Nigeria); Society for Human Development (SHD) (Pakistan); Forum Civil-Section Thiès (Senegal); Jivunie Elimu Bora (Tanzania); and Children And Wives Of Disabled Soldiers Association (Uganda). The ICAN assessment was implemented by locally mobilised field enumerators in Mali, Mexico and Mozambique. Many thanks are also due to all the District Coordinators and field enumerators without whom ICAN's implementation would not have been possible.

Many colleagues from PAL Network member organisations and the PAL Network Secretariat were involved in translation, logistics, training and administrative support throughout the project, and we deeply appreciate their support. We recognise the instrumental role played by Ketan, and the Assessment Team of the PAL Network in steering the entire process. In addition, acknowledgements are due to our finance teams who organised seamless movement of funds between the organisations to support this work.

Above all, our heartfelt thanks to all children and their families who interacted with us.